T1 Comment

Martin has had a great start to kindergarten. He is a very happy boy who gets along with all his peers and is a leader among the boys. During Writers Workshop Martin is learning how to tell stories with pictures and words across several pages. With some teacher prompting and support he is using beginning sounds to write the words in his stories. Martin is also beginning to read with support from his teacher and using reading strategies learned in class. He enjoys math and has been working with shapes, numbers 0-5, and simple addition. A goal for Martin would be to participate more in group discussions and using Kelso's choices when faced with small problems. It's great having a kind little boy like Martin in our class.
